

Trend Family

The Kingsview Trend Family of Managed Futures Programs seeks profits from long term trends in the global commodities and futures markets. The Trend Family derives price exposure by trading a variety of futures products in the regulated U.S. commodity markets. The Trend Family analysts provide statistically based quantitative research on past price movements. Trend Family Programs are systematic and non-discretionary. Trades are placed based upon proprietary indicators that measure market volatility and momentum. Trend Family Programs utilize both long and short futures positions which can be held for extended periods of time. The Advisor may trade options within Trend Family Programs to assist in risk management while maximizing trade efficiency. Trading options involves substantial risk of loss and is not suitable for all investors.
